FORCES AT WORK . . . Increasing Communist pressure in Europe has been instrumental in dividing the continent into three component power blocs, all of which are influenced by a fourth force-U.S. policy, symbolized by the presence of American troops in Germany, Austria and Italy. Map shows western bloc (1) of anti-Communist Britain, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands; northern bloc (2) of the Scandinavian countries, daily growing more apprehensive of Soviet tactics and eastern bloc (3) of Russia and its satellites. Present approximate American troop strength is indicated for Germany (120,000), Austria (10,000) and Italy (5,000).

THE PRICE

Peace and War

"We must be prepared to pay the price of peace or assuredly we shall pay the price of war."

Those words, spoken by President Harry Truman to the U.S. congress, could be the seeds of the first genuine, effective foreign policy this nation has had for half a cen-

Disregarding any political overtones there might have been in the President's speech, his address to the joint session of congress reflected the realization at the top level of government that any successful foreign policy must be based on the fundamental concept of striking a balance between commitments abroad and the national security or strength at home available to back up those commitments.

By definition, the term "foreign policy" implies that any nation expressing such a policy possesses the strength—in military forces and alli ances-to follow it consistently at all times and to defend it just as consistently in case of war.

In that connection Mr. Truman specifically asked congress for power to draft men to build armed strength against the ruthless aggression of Soviet communism. He asked also for "prompt enactment of universal training legislation," indicating that the draft should be only temporary until universal military training is giving the country the trained men it needs. Finally, he sought swift passage of the 5.3-billion-dollar European recovery program - the Marshall plan for economic recovery of western European nations which is setting the Kremlin's teeth on edge. Bluntly the President upbraided Russia for making a travesty of

"One nation has not only refused to cooperate in the establishment of a just and honorable peace, buteven worse—has actively sought to prevent it."

Western Pact

*Lending force to Mr. Truman's scattering of the seeds of foreign to function and before the union of policy was the fact that, an hour western European nations is firmly before he delivered his pronouncement, the just-completed five-nation of urgency, the Soviets may not be western European pact for common able to avert an incident which defense against attack had been announced officially.

Under the treaty, Britain, France, ABOUT FACE: Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands pledged one another military aid in the event that any one of them should be attacked.

According to the new "Truman doning its support of the Palestine doctrine," the United States would be the principal guarantor of this tius Pilate" on the same scene five-power union. Without such a guarantee of U.S. backing, the western European treaty would be

By his declaration in support of the western European pact Mr. Truman seemed to be guiding the U.S. to a point of departure from its historic adherence to the diplomatic enormity of refusing to engage in "entangling alliances" even at the price of its own welfare.

BACHELORS: Declining

Evidence of an innate desire for family life among adult Americans is revealed in a study by the U. S. bureau of the census showing a long-term decline in the proportion of bachelors of both sexes.

On a numerical basis, census bureau figures disclose, the number of single men and women has dropped to the lowest level since the U.N. in the first place if it had port, dealing with college and uni-1920, despite a third increase in population since then.

TRIESTE: Surprise

In a move that surprised everyone from the Russians to American congressmen, the U.S. proposed jointly with France and Britain that the free territory of Trieste be returned to Italy.

Trieste, long a storm center coveted by both Italians and Yugoslavs. had been made a free state under United Nations guidance in the sixmonths-old Italian peace treaty.

The proposal was, apparently, a shrewd and calculated move to try to help the anti-Communist forces in Italy win the April 18 election. It literally put the Russians on the spot, leaving them with little choice of reaction. If they support the western powers' proposal to return Trieste to Italy they will be, in effect, turning their backs on their previous arguments for a Yugoslav Trieste, thereby kicking their Yugoslav cohorts in the face.

On the other hand, if Russia were to side with Yugoslavia it would amount to a rebuff for the Italian Communists. Possession of Trieste is a great political issue in Italy, and it well may turn out now to be a deciding factor in the elections coming up there.

Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito, howthe proposal of the U.S., Britain and France. He simply rejected the demand and proposed instead that a plebiscite be held in the free state of Trieste to decide whether it should be Italian or Yugoslav.

Moscow diplomats were calling the action "another move toward war." Said one: "The beginnings of international order which emerged after the war are being destroyed." But to those who were working tooth and nail against the spread of communism it looked like a master stroke, one which might keep Italy and all of western Europe out of reach of the Kremlin.

RABBITS: Meat Supply

There is one vast source of meat -maybe an inexhaustible one-that the U.S. public might have to consider seriously if beef and pork become as scarce and expensive as it is predicted they will:

Rabbits. That is a department of agriculture idea. The department suggested that the American people take up the raising of rabbits as a supplementary source of meat to eke out the usual protein fare, destined to become more scarce and costly. National rabbit week, which was observed during the week following Easter, would be "a good time" for families to plan to produce a "year round supply of this white, delicately flavored, nutritious meat, comparable to breast of chicken," the department hinted.

What does one need to begin raising rabbits? Just rabbits.

Rescued After Nine Days on Rubber Raft

BROWNSVILLE, TEX.-Esteban De Leon, 26-year-old Mexican flier, suffering from nine days at sea on a rubber raft, told how his companion, a pilot, was lost after their plane crashed in the Gulf of Mex-

The flier related his story as the Panamanian banana freighter Roatan, which rescued him, steamed up the Brownsville ship channel.

De Leon said Neil Womack, 37, Brownsville pilot, was lost from the bobbing, wave-tossed raft sometime during the second night after

The twin-engined DC-3 the men were flying crashed within five minutes of its destination. Ciudad del Carmen, Campeche, Mexico. It had taken off from Brownsville.

The two managed to get onto the rubber raft the plane carried. De Leon said Womack became ever, lost little time in answering delirious and was obsessed with the idea his wife was waiting for him and all he had to do was step from the raft to greet her.

Shouts Name. "Sometime in the night I was awakened when he shouted my name," he said. "But by the time I became fully awake Neil was gone from the raft. "I shouted his name until I was exhausted, but neither saw nor heard him again."

The Roatan docked in Brownsville harbor and an ambulance took De Leon to Mercy hospital

Capt. E. A. Gough, master of the Roatan, said the chief engineer, Maurice Brannon, and Harry Carter, a seaman, sighted De Leon's raft 47 miles north of Frontera, the Roatan's last port of call in De Leon said he had no water during the nine days on the raft, and for food only a bird and two fish he managed to catch.

He prayed to Nuestra Senora del Rosario to either help or destroy

The engines operated perfectly until they had almost reached Engine Catches Fire.

"Then suddenly the left engine of the food and drug administration began to miss, and immediately caught fire. "We feathered the propeller at "The right engine quit running and we started down real fast. We leveled out and stalled about 200 feet above the sea.

"The plane fell in from that altitude.

"I received a few bruises, but Neil was unhurt."

De Leon said he believed the plane remained afloat less than a minute but that in that time the fliers got into rubber life preservers and launched the life raft.

Once, before Womack's disappearance, either a shark or a heavy sea overturned the rubber raft, De Leon said.

"I managed to support Neil, right the raft and drag both of us back out of the sea.'

He said that when he sighted the Roatan he was so weak that he could hardly raise his head to look from the raft. The sound of the ship's engines had attracted his

Escaped Convict Returns To Prison After 18 Years

CANON CITY, COLO.-An elderly, well dressed man entered the office of Warden Roy Best at the Colorado penitentiary and surrendered himself after an absence

Identifying himself as C. E.

O'Dunne, 58, he told Best: "I escaped from here in 1929. I want to turn myself in and clear my conscience. I've had a clean record since I got away but I've been all over the country, and I've always been afraid I'd be picked

The warden checked the records and found that O'Dunne had walked away from a prison farm November 23, 1929. He was received August 20, 1929, from Denver to serve a one and a half to three year forgery sentence.

Best said O'Dunne would not be given additional punishment for the escape.

Chicago Modernizes Police Force; Dobbin Gets Fired

CHICAGO. - Loop traffic offiz cers began taking lessons on their new three-wheel motorcycle mounts as the police department disposed of 29 of its 40 horses.

Policeman Michael J. Dineen gave $25 for the 24-year-old horse he has ridden in the loop for 20 years. He plans to retire the animal to a farm. Policeman Frank Wolf obtained his police mount for $151 and Policeman Jerry Beeson gave $126 for his.

Eleven remaining horses are exrected to be sold to the Illinois national guard's Black Horse troop, a Chicago unit.

Cattle Eat Molasses Made of Hickory and Oak; Ask for More

Sugars in New Fodder Not Fermentable

NEW ORLEANS.-In a recent experiment here molasses mixed with oak and hickory shavings were fed to cattle which ate the mixture with relish and licked their lips appreciatingly.

This ersatz fodder, its developers say, not only resembles residual blackstrap molasses, but under a microscope a person can hardly tell one from the other. As far as taste goes, neither man nor beast, they say, can detect a difference.

The molasses used in the test was made in the United States forestry laboratory at Madison, Wis., where a small pilot plant is turning it out in "reasonable quantities," according to C. R. Lockard, chief of the forest utilization service of the southern forestry experiment station here.

Oak and hickory are used because the sugars in hardwood are not fermentable

Scientists have known for about 100 years how to convert cellulose into sugar, Lockhard said. Wood is 60 to 75 per cent cellulose. But it wasn't until recently that a practical, economical method was hit upon.

Finely divided wood, either sawdust, shavings or chips is put into a huge tank, called a "digester." Hot sulphuric acid is allowed to flow over these wood particles. In three hours, all the cellulose in the wood has been converted into sugars and a weak sugar solution-about 5 per cent-is drained from the vat. The acid is neutralized with lime

This solution then is distilled into molasses, about 50 or 60 per

Only one step more remains. The forestry service chemists must determine the exact nutritive value of the wood molasses as compared with ordinary blackstrap.

'Drunken Drivers' Shock Police in Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA. - Police, summoned by "orried passersby who reported numerous "drunken" drivers along two blocks of Piemont avenue, were baffled for a moment themselves.

Investigating the reports, they found that operators of the city's traffic marking machine had let slip too often and painted a badly zig-zagging line down the middle of the street.

The motorists were following it too faithfully.

Pilots Test Hoppicopter Outdoors in First Trial

SEATTLE.—The hoppicopter, which is the nearest yet to equipping man with wings, has passed its first, free-flight, outdoor test with a man passenger aboard.

Test Pilots Maurice L. Ramme and Kermit D. Jones took the featherweight 175-pound craft aloft for several trials. Three of the machines have been undergoing tests and development work on the plane has been under way for nearly three years.

The pilot sits in the open air in a hoppicopter, appearing to have the mechanism strapped to his back in the futuristic cartoon motif. The 35-horsepower engine is at his back, the twin rotors whirl above his head and the tripe! landing gear is beneath his feet.

The test flights were at low altitude and for short distances.

Girl Suffocates as Ground Gives Way Over Old Well

RIVERSIDE, N. J .- Dorothy Kenney, 11, was romping playfully on a lawn adjoining her home when the ground gave way beneath her and she sank to her death in an old Officers said the ground caved in without warning and Dorothy found herself stuck in a substance resembling quicksand.

She struggled and screamed for help but disappeared quickly before the eyes of her brother, Joseph, 8, and another playmate. Dirt, ice and slush piled on top of the child.

Her body was dug from the well two hours later. Officers said the well was 20 feet deep and covered over. Rains and snows apparently had weakened the top covering.

Nursing and Teaching Jobs Are Plentiful for Women

NEW YORK .- According to new survey by the New York state department of labor, the best opportunities for women today are in the "shortage" fields of nursing and teaching.

The survey revealed that onethird of the women who hold jobs are engaged in manufacturing, 18 per cent work in retail establishments, 13 per cent in the professions, 11 per cent in domestic service and 10 per cent in other personal service industries such as hotels, restaurants, laundries and beauty shops.

Smaller, non-manufacturing industries absorb the rest of the work ing women.

Jan Masaryk Took His Life In Protest Against 'Robots'

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON-For some time after I heard the tragic news of Jan Masaryk's suicide, a strange memory haunted me .... I saw-A man and woman alone in a darkened room. They are two of the last three human beings on earth. The rest have been destroyed by an army of automatons-man-created robots. Creatures who have all other human attributes, but no sensitivities, no souls. Mechanically-made, the robots are the triumph of the productivity of the machine.

But they have revolted and turned against their creators. They now

That, you may remember, was the climax of the play RUR-"Rossums

Universal Robots"—written by Karel I was reminded of it because of one of the first deeds of Jan Masaryk in 1946 when he returned to his native country after the exile imposed on him when Hitler's robots crushed the first Czech republic. When Masaryk returned, he laid flowers on the grave of Karel Kapek, the great Czech author who wrote that prophetic play, giving us the

on a stage, wide as civilization. Day after day come the frightened echoes from Europe of the fear of war. And yet no people wants it. If you were to write down all the material demands of the diplomats and the rulers of each nation, and put them in the hands of the peoples of the world and tell them: If you want these you must have war, who would pay the price of war? None. None but a robot, without sensitivity, without soul. The martyrdom of Jan Masaryk seems to have hurt rather than helped the Communist cause. I spent some time with the former Czechoslovak ambassador to the United States, Juric Slavik, on the eveting of the day when Masaryk's suiide was announced.

Slavik believes that Masaryk felt he could serve his country better dead than as a living prisoner, for the ambassado: says he was a prisoner. Masaryk, alive, but with every word and gesture filtered through the censorship of the Communist screen, would become a symbol of the spirit of Czechoslovakia surrendered, enchained, a noble and historic name and all it has stood for, besmirched and obliterated. One must take into consideration the attitude toward self-destruction in a country which had a long tradition of martyrdom and underground resistance, and no Catholic background. In teaching children about the peoples of the world, Allport says the tendency is to accentuate the DIFFERENCES.

He says: "The American child learns with horror about headhunters, about infanticide; and he learns to laugh at the Dutch who clop in wooden shoes, and at the quaint observances of Easter among adherents to the Orthodox faith. The implication of inferiority is a usual by-product of our present method of teaching cultural and national differences. Less dramatic, but far sounder, would be the teaching of the common considerations of justice and morality that are identical over vast areas of the earth. Practices that may SEEM to differ dramatically often indicate common aspirations and common values. The prayer wheels of Tibet and the silent Quaker meeting have virtually identical functional significance; so too the initiation rites of the Pawnee and the American high school commencement.

Little effort has been made, Allport claims, to search for the common ground of mankind-and he suggests that the United Nations prepare an encyclopedia of the uniformities and similarities in the peliefs, practices and aspirations of all peoples-an encyclopedia which would serve as a reference gu'de for innumerable aspects of world policy for years to come.

Allport thinks that a study of the common peoples of the world undoubtedly would reveal that more important to them than boundaries and national aspirations are matters of self-respect, pride, food, shelter, marriage and the welfare of their children.

ended and the benediction came straight from the heart of the broad-shouldered figure in the pulpit. The stirring voice of the big organ filled the church and the congregation began to leave.

Harry Thatcher and I were surrounded by sober, thoughtful people as we went to the car. He drove out toward the lake.

"Don," Thatcher said abruptly after he got a cigar started. We were entering the lake drive. "There are three million, five hundred and sixty-thousand, four hundred and eighty letters in the Bible."

"I suppose so." I almost dropped my cigarette. His talking about the Book took me by surprise. His interest was financial news, exclusive-

"There are seven hundred and seventy-three thousand, seven hundred and forty-six words in its thirty-one thousand, one hundred and seventy-three verses."

"Sure." I looked at him, wonder-

His gray eyes were half closed, his broad face grave. One could see why he was called "Bull-dog" Thatcher. He had a reputation of going after business, wherever it was, and getting it.

"Shortly after the war ended, a young man named Phillip Crasor came into my club one evening." Thatcher settled himself more comfortably in the broad front seat of the car, one big hand on the wheel rim. "He had been a pilot. I don't know how many missions, but enough. Star end at the university before that. All around athlete. He had been mentioned as a possible Olympic chance. Folks had a little money."

The car rolled with almost no noise. I said nothing. This wasn't the Harry Thatcher I'd known. I'd dropped in on him last night since I was in town for a few days, and he'd insisted upon my going to church with him this morning. Thatcher was not a church man, so far as I knew. I waited.

"Phillip had got some cockeyed ideas in the army," Thatcher went on. "Some radical talk. He started griping about youngsters in the army getting killed while the big-income businessmen stayed home safe. My income runs up a little." He couldn't conceal a note of pride. "He looked at me when he said it and I thought he was making it personal. I told him big-income men were worth what they got and he said they were a lot of stuffed fools. I got sore. I told him he couldn't handle a $50,000 job for a month, much less a year."

Thatcher coughed a little, apologetically.

"I was a captain in the first world war. Infantry. Shrapnel." His hand moved to his right side. "They wouldn't take me the last time."

He straightened. Breeze from the lake swept our smoke from the car. "Phillip Crasor said he had $5,000 that said he could handle any $50,-000 job for 12 months. Inherited the money from an aunt, I believe. Anyway, he said for me to put up or shut up. The fellows in the club laughed, and I-well, I lost my temper. I called him at ten to one, betting 50,000 against his five that he couldn't handle the job. I was to name the job. It wasn't to be impossible, or require technical skill neither of us had. It was foolish, but neither of us would back down. It was a bet and I couldn't call it off. Betting is strictly business with me. If I win I collect, and if I lose I pay off. Strictly business.

Hope

THE finest sermon I ever heard | If a man can't look at it like that, he has no business betting."

He tooled the big car around a curve. Sunlight was on the lake, a moving pattern of glinting water under a cloud splashed sky.

"The club was in an uproar, with men betting each other we'd both back out, or go on with it. I went over to the big bookcase at the other end of the room to think it out. "I saw the Bible in the bookcase and remembered my mother telling me that the Book was good to read when you didn't know what to do. I didn't know what to do. "I took the Bible and saw in the

If we had too much argument we could each choose a friend and they would choose a third party to settle the argument. There wasn't anything left for me to do but go through with it. I was going to each Phillip Crasor a lesson, anyway."

My forgotten cigarette burned my fingers and I tossed it from the

to work. I left a man there to see had $50,000 at stake."

"Phillip Crasor was going to produce 10 perfectly legible handwritten copies of the Bible, as the contract provided, or he would lose the bet."

"I didn't get back for a week or two, and Phillip had spoiled a lot of paper but produced nothing acwrite missed words on the black- I told him to read the contract and board a couple of hundred times. | it was time for him to put up or I wrote about 20 words a minute. writing carefully. I figured I could write perhaps 30 words a minute, fast. That meant about 15,000 words in a full day of writing. At that rate, it would take 50 days to complete a handwritten copy of the Bible. Ten good, clear, handwritten copies would therefore take about 500 days, and the bet was for a year."

Thatcher laughed softly, remembering.

"I realized that this was an ideal job for the purpose. It required no technical skill neither of us had, and there was a good chance that Phillip Crasor couldn't do it. I didn't want to lose $50,000 any more than he wanted to lose the five. Phillip hadn't stuck at anything since he came out of the army, and I figured he'd drop out within a few weeks at the most. Then, I'd return his money and teach him a lesson he wouldn't forget about betting. And there was a very good chance that, after he learned what the job was to be, he'd drop the whole thing and agree to call the bet off. That would have been fine with me. I couldn't back down as long as Phillip wanted to go on, of course. The men at the club never would have forgotten it, and it would have hurt me in a business way. I went back to the others."

He nursed his cigar for a few

"Phillip Crasor exploded when he learned what the job was to be. I didn't know it, but his handwriting was awful. He thought I was ribbing him. The men in the club were having the time of their lives. A well-known lawyer drew up a contract and both of us signed it. Phillip Crasor wouldn't back down and I couldn't. I was to furnish the shut up. I thought he would burst. The club was betting he'd last about another week. I did not think he'd go that long."

Thatcher looked out over the lake, then his eyes came back to the drive before us.

"Business suddenly took me to France and Italy and I stayed there for months." He coughed again, apologetically. "All wars are not won on the battlefield, and all soldiers do not wear uniforms, you know. Anyway, I was gone over nine months. My man cabled me that Phillip Crasor had locked himself in the cottage and wouldn't let anyone in. The year was almost up when I got back home. It had about 20 days to run. I hurried down to

"My man said Phillip Crasor had been gone for a week. The 10 handwritten copies of the Bible were on a table in the cottage, all perfectly legible. On top of one pile was a letter to me from Phillip Crasor. I have that letter home now, in my Bible. He said he wouldn't take the $50,000 and the bet was off. I paid, though, to the church we attended this morning. When a man loses, he should pay. It's strictly business. If I'd won-" "But what about Phillip Crasor?" I held another forgotten cigarette in my hand.

"Oh. He preached that sermon you heard this morning."

LET'S TALK ABOUT YOU - BY CHARLES B. ROTH -

GIVE YOURSELF TO A CHAIR

A friend of the late William James, greatest psychologist of his day, asked the noted man if he would mind giving a few rules for the improvement of personality. "One rule I will give you," responded Dr. James, "a simple rule -but so important. The rule is this: Learn to give yourself up to a chair at least once each day."

Mystified, the inquirer asked what Dr. James meant when he said "give yourself up to a chair."

"Practice conscious relaxation," he was told. "Relax every day. Relaxation, particularly the ease and restfulness associated with utter relaxation, is one of the best aids I know in developing & charming personality."

How often one sees these futile run-arounds, men and women who are busy from morning till night, who never relax, who dash from one thing to another, who fidget and fume, who talk rapidly, who burn up energy and tire themselves and everyone else out by their fruitless display of waste motion. And how rarely one finds the composed, relaxed personality of power. Dr. James' advice was, of course, purely physical-all you had to do was to give yourself up to the chair, relax utterly, let your body sag where it would. But there is always a subtle and marked relation-'What mental mood can you expect if you are always physically tense?" he inquired.

Religion in Schools

NOT in a generation has there been a more controversial ruling "I turned over a small cottage handed down by the supreme court down on the lake to Phillip Crasor, than the 8 to 1 decision overruling stocked it with a Bible, paper, pens, the lower courts in the religious inink and blotters and told him to go struction case at Champaign, Ill. The court's ruling was based on use of tax-supported school property for religious instruction in various faiths provided by the Champaign council on religious education one period a week. An atheist brought suit because her son was "embarrassed." The court said she was right and the practice violated the first amendment to the Constitution which reads:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." No federal law was in question, merely the action of a school board which is under jurisdiction of the state, as are all public schools.

Justice Reed in his dissenting opinion held there was no more violation of the traditional separation of church and state than the practice of using chaplains in the army and navy or for congress itself.

So concerned was the neutral National Education association that it issued a statement holding the decision "in no way voids the responsibility of the public schools to inculcate those moral and ethical principles which are the essence of the good life. One of the important objectives of public education has been, and always will be, to inspire him after that! in youth a deep appreciation for the basic spiritual and religious values which give meaning to existence, provide the foundations of good character and are guides to a high order of human conduct."

About the only semblance to rent control remaining in the so-called rent control bill as it came from the house banking and currency combut the house committee merely enlarged these weaknesses and gave sole and autonomous power over rents to local boards. So it is now a "local option" law without any fedion of many, except perhaps the national association of real estate boards, a farce, pure and simple.

As was predicted in this column months ago, that section of the Taft-Hartley law which prohibited political activity by labor unions and expressions of political opinions by labor newspapers has been declared unconstitutional. The case which had president Phil Murray of the CIO under indictment will go to the supreme court. Other sections also likely will be ruled out by the courts,

Back to the Kitchen

The supercharged issue of whether or not federal taxes on oleomargarine should be repealed was supposed to develop into one of the most historic fights since the battle of Agincourt, but instead it dropped dead before it even got up to the line of scrimmage. The house agriculture committee administered the coup de grace by voting 16 to 10 to shelve all legislation to repeal federal taxes on oleo.

Said Rep. Clifford Hope (Rep., Kas.): "This kills legislation to repeal these taxes at this session of congress."

Some diehards, however, want to get a bill to the house floor by a discharge petition, but that would require 218 signatures and it is doubtful that they could be obtained. Meantime, housewives all over the nation continued to develop lame arms by mixing the color into the margarine themselves.

Kathleen Norris Says:

Stepson Needs Affection

Encourage Jerry to take his addition, subtraction and spelling to Dad. Encourage Dad to give him a few minutes every night.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

'MINE is a nerve problem, I think," writes Carol Mack. "We are getting horribly nervous, all around, as a family, and I don't know how to handle it any longer.

"It's rather mixed," she continues, "but the person most responsible for trouble is, I think, my husband's son by an earlier marriage, Jerry, eight years old. His mother was, and is, an invalid; she resents my existence as her successor, and whenever Jerry has been with her he comes back completely demoralized and tells me he hates me. You can imagine my influence over

"I am 27, and although I was Ben's secretary, and was the reason for his divorce, believe me, I am nicer than I sound. His first wife is seven years older than he, sick and complaining, and her sole devotion seems to be to the niece who is her nurse and to whom she savs she is going to leave all her money.

"Ben had no home life, no chance for hospitality or domestic peace, mittee is the name. As the meas- he was becoming bitter and pessiure passed the senate it was weak | mistic when I met him. He spent most of his time at the club, and Jerry was being completely spoiled or else neglected by his mother and the nurse. My mother and I loved Ben, welcomed him to our homeeral authority since the right of re- where we live now, and his return view is taken away from the hous- to real living and real happiness ing expediter and is, in the opin- presently led to our marriage. We are completely devoted, and Mother's presence in the house-and she is a real mother!-means that we can be away evenings, go on little trips, and trust much of the household management and the care of our adorable new baby, to her.

Jerry Misbehaves

"But Jerry behaves so terribly, kicking, screaming, rude, and disobedient, that Ben gets cross and despondent and talks sometimes as if the whole thing had been a mistake. Ben feels that he must thrash Jerry, and then Jerry shouts that he hates his father; Mother asks him not to punish the boy and that makes Ben mad. I am nursing baby Ben, and not back to full strength yet, and this racket and fighting make me cry. Ben says he won't sent Jerry to school, indeed we could hardly afford it, and Leila, the former wife, will give no help unless we give up Jerry completely, and that Ben will never do.

To Carol I would say that an actual sacrifice may be demanded of her but somehow, judging from her unusual letter, I believe that she may be strong enough to make it. Deplorable as these office - wife versus home-wife affairs are, she is into it now, and she may be able to pull a success out of it.

Your best chance, Carol, is to build up a friendship between Ben and his older son. Boys of eight are singularly susceptible to love and praise -as indeed, which of us isn't? You will find him almost babyishly vulnerable to the proper approach.

Don't hurry it, but begin with a little flattery of both father and son. Find common interests for them; if they can't actually go fishing or hunting at this season, they can talk of it for hours if you get

. . . stck and complaining . . .

BUILD LOVE

Carol, a young secretary, married her boss whose life was constantly beset with the complaints and disgruntled vicissitudes of a sickly, invalid wife.

She informs Miss Norris that her marriage has been an exceptionally happy one with one exception. Jerry, her eight-year-old stepson, is unmanageable especially when he returns from visits with his mother. After being with his mother he exudes vituperation and tells Carol that he hates her intensely.

Carol is certain that the boy is under the evil spell of his mother who injects venomous potions of hate into the boy at every opportunity since she strenuously resents Carol's position as her successor.

Her best chance of building harmony in the home, according to Miss Norris, is to construct a bridge of love between father and son. Carol should promote mutual interests between Jerry and Ben and assist in every way to strengthen the bond of friendship between them.

The pure gold chain which she patiently forges link by link will radiate rays of love of such brilliance that she cannot possibly escape receiving some of them herself.

take his addition and subtraction and his abhorred spelling lessons to Dad. Encourage Dad to give him just a few minutes help every night.

Should Share Refreshments

Tell Jerry that Dad must have some small refreshment when he comes in tired, and that Ben must share it. Have him wait for his after school cookies and milk, and give Dad his stronger refreshment at the same time, putting dinner off until the peaceful hour of seventhirty, when both boys are in bed. Praise Jerry to his father, and Dad to Jerry, and quote between them every loving thing you honestly can plant in this plot of affection.

On Sunday ask Ben to walk with Jerry to the museum or the docks while you and Mother clean house. Make Jerry think this new relationship is his own doing, and Ben think it is his own. And gradually explain to the small boy that if he has Dad sometimes, you must too.

This will take time and patience. It will involve discouragement and setbacks. It asks love first, and silence second. Overlook all you can, and when you talk with Ben overlook more. Laugh off a lot of it as baby jealousy and unsettledness. Probably Jerry's own mother is filling him with prejudices, you can't stop that. But you can counteract it with kindly references to her, rationalizing the small boy's confusions, building about him as many happy hours as you can, of games, home-work help, confidences, sympathy with movie comedies and radio favorites, and a firm policy of referring to Ben all that concerns him. Time is on your side. Plan it right and you cannot fail, and the love of your three them started. Encourage Jerry to men will be your reward.

One-Eyed Accidents

Poor vision in one eye apparently is involved in many automobile accidents at intersections, according to the public health bureau of American Optometric association.

In a study of California drivers selected at random from those who were in fatal intersection accidents, a third had poor vision in one eye. A danger signal of inadequate vision in one eye, a spokesman said, would be a tendency to hit curbs on turning.

People like to say they have ar open mind. But with some of them it's mighty hard to find the opening.

Even a watch that won't run is right twice a day.

Termites and Pecans

Termites usually live in dead wood and most people associate them with wood destruction. However, pecan nursery stock and small trees sometimes are killed by the feeding of termites in the roots. The tree may have its taproot or its branches tunneled until only a shell or the bark remains.

James Hoban, a native of Ireland, who had resided for some time in Charleston, S. C., in 1792 won a prize of $500 offered for the best design for the President's house. Construction began in 1792, but President Adams in 1800 was the first to occupy the mansion.

Hiram Maxim, son of the inventor of the Maxim silencer for guns, has patented a snowplow to be attached to the bumper of an automobile. The attachment is a simple one, requiring no additional equipment to enable an automobile to operate it.

Cooking Fish

Most important thing to remember in cooking fish is that it too often is overcooked. Just enough cooking to enable the flesh to be flaked easily from the bones will leave the fish moist and tender and bring out its delicate flavor.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character of any person or firm appearing in these columns will be gladly and promptly corrected upon being brought to the attention of the management.

Trends among Congressmen this week indicate the nation will doubtless get a hefty increase in appropriations for aircraft production. . . . Since the services are asking for at least two billions of dollars, it seems relatively certain that at least one billion will be made available to modernize our aircraft and bring our striking forces up to par. . . . It should be recalled that our national defense budget calls for an cutlay of eleven killions, and the cost of training an enlarged Navy, Army and Air Force personnel will have to be taken into account before the final occion our defense program is arrived at accurately.

Now that lawmakers favor more an ! better aireraft, we should keep well in mind the fact we have hundreds of nov obsolete, war-weary craft overseas that should be permanently grounded. . . There is very little sense in taking up C-47s that have already turned in yoeman duties during World War II and ris kthe necks of our boys in service; when this nation could provide brand new, first line ships for all overseas operations. . . Following the end of World War II shooting we began to dismantle many of our air fields and, to add insult to injury, began to stack thousands of planes in air field "graves" much like school children tired and bored with too many toys. . . . We did not apparently have the foresight to keep aircraft production, especially with newer, fast planes, up to a point of comparable safety; much less keep our air forces anywhere near the peak of efficiency maintained behind the Iron Curtain.

Something in the way of a new inflationary trend is in the mill with mobilization planning being discussed in rather frank and open terms. . . . Addition of about 600,000 men to the armed forces will not seriously reduce the nation's labor force, and the equipment needed to train these men will not seriously drain our productive capacities during this vital year of reconstruction. . . . Aluminum, which will be ance greatly needed in manufacture of new planes, is in plentiful supply at present, and indications point to an eventual salvage of several thousand tons from shipss now being wrecked at first one sector and another. . . . We have a gigantic housing bill coming up that, if approved, should assure the U S. of all 10-year construction boom.

Although Harry Truman got off badly on his civil but more intense. Commodity prices rights program as far as the South is concerned, he declares he will stand by this part of his strategy available. Foreign developments until he ends his tenure of office.

Cotton's Position Strengthened by Recent Declines

Strong supply and demand situation for cotton improved after the recent sharp decline in cotton prices, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reported this week in a release to The Herald.

According to Dr. A. B. Cox, professor of cotton marketing at the University of Texas, "the export price of United States cotton is for the first time in a long time relatively lower than major foreign growths. Moreover, the decline at this time in the price of cotton will be a restraint on acreage expansion which will further strengthen the position of coton."

The decline in cotton prices followed the pattern of all agricultural products, reflecting some of the effects of inflation. "Cotton prices went down because of a general decline in price of agricultural products and not because cotton itsel' was in a weak position," Dr. Cox

Curtailment of increases of cotton acreages are anticipated, although the real post-war adjustment is yet to come. Inflationary tax reductions and the Marshall Plan should speed Europe's recovery and bring national economies nearer to bal-

"It would be a grave mistake to think of the recent set-back in the price of cotton and other major farm commodities in this country as the real post-war adjustment," Dr.

The United States and the world economic conditions are similar in nature to those after World War I, should remain steady until evidence of the size of this year's harvest is could, of course, alter the situation at any time.

State Health Officer Urges Caution in Influenza Cases

This is the season of the year prevalent in Scurry County and the rest of the state, according to Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer. Colds, grippe, influenza or your normal routine of life gradwhatever we may call them, are believed to be spread from person to person through discharges from the nose and throat. To protect yourself and others from such diseases here are some of the things to re-

Influenza is highly infectious. Practically everybody is susceptible to it. No matter how many times you have had the disease, you may contract it again. Therefore, keep away from people who are coughing, sneezing, or who are actively ill with colds, influenza or pneumonia. Keep away from crowded places., Have your own towel; always wash your hands before eating; and sneeze or cough into your handkerchief.

Keep fit by drinking plenty of water, eating simple, nourishing food and taking some exercise each day out of doors. Dress according to the weather; get plenty of sleep in a well ventilated room; and keep the bowels regulated. Disastrous results may ensue from this disease if influenza cases are allowed to get about too soon. Per-

PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER

The race to be Mister Harassmen or the Worrying Man, otherwise known as President of the United States, is on. Everybody is coming into the ring at the drop of a nat, so to speak. The stewards may have to divide it into two heats to prevent overcrowding and piling up in the stretch.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur is willing to go to the post. He is quite a man. George Washington threw a dollar across the Rappahannock but MacArthur threw a brass hat across the Pacific ocean.

General MacArthur offers himself to the Republicans if they insist and it sounds a little like a reiteration of his famous statement, "I shall return." Anybody who can wind up ruling Japan after Corregidor is not to be discounted no matter how long or difficult the road.

President Truman made the announcement that he would like four years more of trials and tribulations the same day MacArthur's word came from Tokyo. In the last couple of years Harry has been through more fighting than Douglas.

Messrs. Dewey, Taft, Stassen, Vandenburg and other GOP hopefuls took the entry of General MacArthur with a show of minimum concern but no race is ever made any easier by traffic congestion at the post.

General Ike, the Abilene Bearcat, announced that he would not be a candidate and added that he did not see anything in the situation which required a military man to make a general headquarters of the White House. Plainly MacArthur's reply to this is, "Sez you!"

Democratic politicians are insisting that if they could get Truman to step out and get Ike to ride the donkey it wouldn't make any difference if the Republicans ran MacArthur, Doolittle, Bradley, Spatz, Nimitz and Halsey all on one ticket.

Could it come to pass that, with General MacArthur seeing an excuse for a military man camping on the Potomac, General Eisenhower might be prevailed upon to change his mind? We shall see what we shall see, as the fellow said as he looked into the wrong end of a telescope. But we hope the campaign will be recognizable as a political contest and not a major military event.

Elmer Twitchell is close to a fortune. He is thinking of signing up to supply the United Nations with loopholes. The demand for smaller ones is especially high.

Dear Uncle Sam:

This is a follow up to my recent letter asking if you didn't think it time you snapped out of that selfdestructive trance in the drug-store window and started acting as if you were hep to the fact that Kremlin workers for your liquidation are just about the most efficient, wideawake, high-powered 24-hours-a-day shift organization in the land. _ . _

Sure, the people are asleep at the switch. Sure, they are hard to arouse. Yeah, I know 85 per cent of all Americans are so busy playing pinball machines, writing limericks for radio prizes, applauding the wrong people in newsreels and trying to get a new sedan that the 15 per cent hard at work to Sovietize America are having it easy.

What we need are demonstrations in every town and city for the preservation of America, and in 'em there should be the spirit of the oldtime Fourth of July meetings, with the brass bands playing "Yankee Doodle" and the eyes of the people lighted up with gratitude for the great blessing of living in the greatest country on earth.

Americans are good joiners and good organizers. Once aroused they are tough babies and nobody's fools. How about a national campaign to get them as hard-working, alert and vigorous in preserving the country as the Moscow agents are for feeding it to the crows? I'm just ask-

Easily Built Cottage Solves Housing Problem

I F you have a housing problem build this cottage now. Total cost of materials runs well under $1,000.00. The simplified Pattern Method of Construction takes all the mystery out of building. Pattern tells what materials to buy and where to use them . . . specifies size and quantity of nails and other hardware needed.

Complete information is provided for laying out guide lines, digging foundations and putting in footings. Framing and sheathing instructions are also included. Assembly illustrations show exact location of all framing members. After the subflooring is nailed to the floor joists, the four wall frames are built complete on the working platform. Each is then raised and nailed in position.

Patterns are provided for making all angle cuts on studs and rafters. Step by step directions are written so that any 17 or 18 year old boy can follow and understand the procedure outlined.

Solve your housing problem by building this cottage yourself just as our pioneer forefathers solved theirs. Send $2.00 for Country Cottage Pattern No. 91 to Easi-Bild Pattern Company, De-partment W, Pleasantville, N. Y.

mark in U. S. savings binds in 1947, according to figures just reeased to The Herald by the Texas advisory committee on saving's bonds. Nathan Adams of Dallas, chairman of the committee, praised the citizens of the state on their continued support of the U.S. treasury's program to help combat inflation and to aid its management of the public debt.

"There is a growing realization among the people of Texas and the nation," Mr. Adams said, "that the great national debt must be spread among the greatest number of citizens if we are to continue a sound economy. Each individual citizen is directly affected by the management of the national debt and it is gratifying to see so many Texans continuing to invest in U. S. savings bonds.

"The U. S. treasury has received the endersement from groups all ever the nation urging it to continue a vigorous campaign to sell more savings bonds in 1948 as one of the great anti-inflationary moves. These groups include businessmen, bankers, investment bankers and many others."

Total sales for Texas in 1947 amounted to $202,896,123, Adams said, with $134,650,000 in Series E bands. He pointed out that almost of the number of Series E bonds issued were in $25 denominations.

The Census Bureau said Wednesday a record number of babies, 3,908,000, were born in 1947.

Continuance of a low death rate and a net immigration of about 215,000 persons also helped the net boost last year.

The 1947 net gain was 2,667,000 persons. That exceeded the pre-Texans topped the $200,000,000 vious record increase, attained in 1946, by about 400,000.

Folks' Carlessness And Ignorance Aid Spread of Diseases

"Carelessness and ignorance represent two of the most powerful factors in spreading communicable disease from man to man," Hamlin area people were reminded this week

"No more emphatic example of this fact exists than the continued ravages of tuberculosis. In spite of the knowledge of its causes and spread, and of curative methods, tuberculosis is still a very serious problem not only in Texas, but throughout the United States," declares Dr. George W. Cox. state health officer.

"It is true that tuberculosis no longer is first on the list of killing diseases as it was formerly," Dr Cox said, "but despite having been reduced to fifth place in Texas, it still is responsible for more deaths between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other disease. And this fact exists even though the majority of condition arrested if it were recognized early and proper treatment applied. "Treatment of the early recognized case is essential. It is of equal importance, from a public health viewpoint, that the spread of this devastating infection be prevented. A more intelligent appreciation of this fact would result in the saving of thousands of lives.

"When a diagnosis of active tuberculosis has been made, examination of all of the other members of the immediate family should follow as a matter of course. Tuberculosis runs in families, not because of any especial susceptibility to the disease, but becaue it is communicable, being usually transmitted through close and prolonged contact with the active case."

To reduce the number of deaths caused by tuberculosis, Dr. Cox suggests periodic examination of all adults, a check-up by physicians of the known active cases and contacts. regular examinations of high school children, isolation or hospitalization of the active tuberculosis case, and a more intelligent application

Trimmed Funds For Agriculture Passed by House

Hamlin area farmers were concerned this week with the report that greatly pared funds for the Department of Agriculture as provided in the appropriation bill passed Thursday by the house of representatives at Washington. It provides funds totaling $545,533,452.

As the bill goes to the Senate it carries $90,790,027 less than President Truman asked for the department for the fiscal year starting next July 1. It provides $86,993,198 less than the department received this year. But 65,000,000 of the craimed reduction is in effect a paper cut. The actual reduction is about four per cent below the budget figure.

The $65,000,000 was asked for the school lunch program. But instead tuberculosis patients could have their of giving it in cash the House ordered the money taken from the department's share of customs taxes collected on agricultural imports. An amendment by Representative Buck (Republican of New York) to shouted down.

"Shoot," said Brecheen.

"Just a year ago around this time, the Cardinals were 3-to-5 favorites. They were the surest things in baseball. I don't mean looked bad, I mean looked terrible.'

Harry the Cat fixed two shining eyes on me and started to talk.

"That's very simple," he said. "The Cardinal veterans were not belting the other teams around. It was the Cardinal rookies-the kids. We had infielders and outfielders who were knocking down the fences-all rookies. We had fine pitching-mostly rookies.

"Naturally the veterans sat back and laughed. What a push-over. Sam Breadon said it was the greatest bunch of rookies ever known. We thought so too.

Gene had an idea that the younger and unknown pros should get more protection or help.

"You don't have to help the Hogans, Sneads, Demarets, Nelsons or Lockes," he said. "They can take care of themselves. But these younger fellows on a tour have to pay out rather important moneyfrom $2,000 to $3,000. There should be bigger cash prizes, extended to those who finish from 12th to 20th place.

"Young ballplayers and young football players get paid something -I mean the pros. Can you imagine these fellows being asked to fork over $2,000 each to get experience?

"Golf doesn't care for its own. Most of the money goes to just a few people. We should have people ahead of a tour making arrangements for the younger fellows at much cheaper prices-not $20 a day. Give them a break." If golf, pro golf, ever got a real

The Coming Battle

A few years ago Bob Zuppke, then football coach at Illinois, was talking of the season ahead. "We can play fine football," he said, "still lose every game."

This is the way Ben Chapman thinks about the National League race. "The Phillies can play highgrade baseball this season and still finish last. That also goes for the Cubs. Pirates and Reds.

"We are all improved over last year," Chapman continued. "The Cubs, Pirates and Reds are much stronger. So are we. All of us are shooting for the first division, or the top of the second. But someone has to finish last and next to last.

His Message to Exiles

Lesson for April 11, 1948

CONTINUING the theme of last Sunday's lesson, we go further into the ministry of Ezekiel as God's messenger to a people in exile. For this Sunday we have chapters 18

and 34, and portions of the 36th

The 18th chapter

opens with a revealing rebuke to

Ezekiel. God tells him expressly that he is not to say any more to the Jews

that "the fathers

have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge. As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Isreal. Behold, all souls are mine." And then God adds, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die."

. . . GOD'S LOVE AND CARE

A LL through these chapters in Sunday's lesson, two solemn truths appear-God's love for his people, manifest in unwearied care; and the responsibility of each soul for the sin which such commits against God.

This truth, or these truths, I should say, are equally applicable for us today. As Ezekiel was sent to remind the people of God's love and care, so must we, early in eur youth, accept the responsibility of accepting his love or rejecting his love.

We cannot claim his care if we despise his will. That is the message of Ezekiel for us.

WHAT GOD IS LIKE NOWHERE in the Old Testament is the love of God more manifest and compelling than in Ezekiel 34:11-27. I hope that you will open your Bible to this passage. Here the Bible speaks in words that burn with the compassionate love of God for sinful souls. "I will both search my sheep, and seek them out. As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered; so will I seek out my sheep, and I will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered in the cloudy and dark day . . . And I will bring them to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel by the rivers." One is reminded here of Jesus, when he said, "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

A NEW HEART "A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you," Ezekiel 36:26. Here we have, perhaps, the sublimest sentence in the prophecy of Ezekiel. God is speaking. Ezekiel is merely the messenger - the voice, as John the Baptist delighted to describe himself. Ezekiel has faithfully declared that each individual is responsible unto God, and just as faithfully he has proclaimed God's love and care, and now he adds the third great truth, namely, that God waits to bestow the new heart and the new spirit to every repentant

A new heart and a new spirit. That is what the Jews needed. That is what the world needs today-a new heart and a new spirit. Only God could give a new heart then, and only God can make such gift

EZEKIEL'S MESSAGE FOR US

Would we listen to Ezekiel today? He has the message we need above all other words that may be spoken. He called the Jews to repentance of sin. That is what America needs today. Boys and girls need it. Men and women need it. And just as God waited patiently to bestow the new heart and spirit to Israel in the long ago, so does he wait to grant us today a new heart and a new spirit.

Truman Calls for Draft, Training To Boister Resistance to Russia; U.S. Reverses Stand on Partition

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

FORCES AT WORK . . . Increasing Communist pressure in Europe has been instrumental in dividing the continent into three component power blocs, all of which are influenced by a fourth force-U.S. policy, symbolized by the presence of American troops in Germany, Austria and Italy. Map shows western bloc (1) of anti-Communist Britain, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands; northern bloc (2) of the Scandinavian countries, daily growing more apprehensive of Soviet tactics and eastern bloc (3) of Russia and its satellites. Present approximate American troop strength is indicated for Germany (120,000), Austria (10,000) and Italy (5,000).

THE PRICE

Peace and War

"We must be prepared to pay the price of peace or assuredly we shall pay the price of war."

Those words, spoken by President Harry Truman to the U. S. congress, could be the seeds of the first genuine, effective foreign policy this nation has had for half a cen-

Disregarding any political overtones there might have been in the President's speech, his address to the joint session of congress reflected the realization at the top level of government that any successful foreign policy must be based on the fundamental concept of striking a balance between commitments abroad and the national security or strength at home available to back up those commitments.

By definition, the term "foreign policy" implies that any nation expressing such a policy possesses the strength-in military forces and allitimes and to defend it just as consistently in case of war.

In that connection Mr. Truman specifically asked congress for power to draft men to build armed strength against the ruthless aggression of Soviet communism.

He asked also for "prompt enactment of universal training legislation," indicating that the draft should be only temporary until universal military training is giving the country the trained men it needs.

Finally, he sought swift passage of the 5.3-billion-dollar European recovery program - the Marshall plan for economic recovery of western European nations which is setting the Kremlin's teeth on edge.

Bluntly the President upbraided Russia for making a travesty of

"One nation has not only refused to cooperate in the establishment of a just and honorable peace, buteven worse-has actively sought to prevent it."

Western Pact

*Lending force to Mr. Truman's scattering of the seeds of foreign policy was the fact that, an hour before he delivered his pronouncement, the just-completed five-nation western European pact for common defense against attack had been announced officially.

Under the treaty, Britain, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands pledged one another military aid in the event that any one of them should be attacked.

According to the new "Truman doctrine," the United States would partition plan, had pulled a "Ponbe the principal guarantor of this tius Pilate" on the same scene five-power union. Without such a guarantee of U. S. backing, the west- washed his hands not quite 2,000 ern European treaty would be meaningless.

By his declaration in support of the western European pact Mr. Trutition struggle, the U.S. proposed man seemed to be guiding the U.S. to a point of departure from its historic adherence to the diplomatic enormity of refusing to engage in "entangling alliances" even at the price of its own welfare.

BACHELORS:

Evidence of an innate desire for family life among adult Americans is revealed in a study by the U.S. bureau of the census showing a long-term decline in the proportion of bachelors of both sexes.

On a numerical basis, census bureau figures disclose, the number of single men and women has never would have been adopted by U. S. office of education. The redropped to the lowest level since 1920, despite a third increase in population since then.

TRIESTE: Surprise

In a move that surprised everyone from the Russians to American congressmen, the U.S. proposed jointly with France and Britain that the free territory of Trieste be returned to Italy.

Trieste, long a storm center coveted by both Italians and Yugoslavs, had been made a free state under United Nations guidance in the sixmonths-old Italian peace treaty.

The proposal was, apparently, a shrewd and calculated move to try to help the anti-Communist forces in Italy win the April 18 election. It literally put the Russians on the spot, leaving them with little choice of reaction. If they support the western powers' proposal to return Trieste to Italy they will be, in effect, turning their backs on their previous arguments for a Yugoslav Trieste, thereby kicking their Yugoslav cohorts in the face.

On the other hand, if Russia were to side with Yugoslavia it would amount to a rebuff for the Italian Communists. Possession of Trieste is a great political issue in Italy, and it well may turn out now to be a deciding factor in the elections

Yugoslavia's Marshal Tito, however, lost little time in answering the proposal of the U.S., Britain and France. He simply rejected the demand and proposed instead that a plebiscite be held in the free state of Trieste to decide whether it should be Italian or Yugoslav.

Moscow diplomats were calling the action "another move toward war." Said one: "The beginnings of international order which emerged after the war are being destroyed."

But to those who were working tooth and nail against the spread of communism it looked like a master stroke, one which might keep Italy and all of western Europe out of reach of the Kremlin.

There is one vast source of meat -maybe an inexhaustible one-that the U.S. public might have to consider seriously if beef and pork become as scarce and expensive as it is predicted they will:

Rabbits.

That is a department of agriculture idea. The department suggested that the American people take up the raising of rabbits as a supplementary source of meat to eke out the usual protein fare, destined

Rescued After Nine Days on Rubber Raft

BROWNSVILLE, TEX.-Esteban De Leon, 26-year-old Mexican flier, suffering from nine days at sea on a rubber raft, told how his companion, a pilot, was lost after their plane crashed in the Gulf of Mex-

The flier related his story as the Panamanian banana freighter Roatan, which rescued him, steamed up the Brownsville ship channel.

De Leon said Neil Womack, 37, Brownsville pilot, was lost from the bobbing, wave-tossed raft sometime during the second night after

The twin-engined DC-3 the men were flying crashed within five minutes of its destination, Ciudad del Carmen, Campeche, Mexico. It had taken off from Brownsville.

The two managed to get onto the rubber raft the plane carried. De Leon said Womack became delirious and was obsessed with the idea his wife was waiting for him and all he had to do was step from the raft to greet her. Shouts Name.

"Sometime in the night I was awakened when he shouted my name," he said. "But by the time I became fully awake Neil was gone from the raft.

"I shouted his name until I was exhausted, but neither saw nor heard him again."

The Roatan docked in Browns ville harbor and an ambulance took De Leon to Mercy hospital

Capt. E. A. Gough, master of the Roatan, said the chief engineer, Maurice Brannon, and Harry Carter, a seaman, sighted De Leon's raft 47 miles north of Frontera, the Roatan's last port of call in

"I received a few bruises, but Neil was unhurt."

De Leon said he believed the plane remained afloat less than a minute but that in that time the fliers got into rubber life preservers and launched the life raft.

Once, before Womack's disappearance, either a shark or a heavy sca overturned the rubber raft, De Leon said.

"I managed to support Neil, right the raft and drag both of us back out of the sea

He said that when he sighted the Roatan he was so weak that he could hardly raise his head to look from the raft. The sound of the ship's engines had attracted his

Escaped Convict Returns To Prison After 18 Years

CANON CITY, COLO.-An elderly, well dressed man entered the office of Warden Roy Best at the Colorado penitentiary and surrendered himself after an absence of 18 years. Identifying himself as C. E.

O'Dunne, 58, he told Best: "I escaped from here in 1929. I want to turn myself in and clear my conscience. I've had a clean record since I got away but I've been all over the country, and I've always been afraid I'd be picked

The warden checked the records and found that O'Dunne had walked away from a prison farm November 23, 1929. He was received August 20, 1929, from Denver to serve a one and a half to three year forgery sentence.

Best said O'Dunne would not be given additional punishment for the escape.

Cattle Eat Molasses Made of Hickory and Oak; Ask for More

Sugars in New Fodder Not Fermentable

NEW ORLEANS.-In a recent experiment here molasses mixed with oak and hickory shavings were fed to cattle which ate the mixture with relish and licked their lips appreciatingly.

This ersatz fodder, its developers say, not only resembles residual blackstrap molasses, but under a microscope a person can hardly tell one from the other. As far as taste goes, neither man nor beast, they say, can detect a difference.

The molasses used in the test was made in the United States forestry laboratory at Madison, Wis., where a small pilot plant is turning it out in "reasonable quantities." according to C. R. Lockard, chief of forest utilization service of the southern forestry experiment station here.

Oak and hickory are used because the sugars in hardwood are not fermentable

Scientists have known for about 100 years how to convert cellulose into sugar, Lockhard said. Wood is 60 to 75 per cent cellulose.

But it wasn't until recently that a practical, economical method was hit upon.

Finely divided wood, either sawdust, shavings or chips is put into a huge tank, called a "digester." Hot sulphuric acid is allowed to flow over these wood particles.

In three hours, all the cellulose in the wood has been converted into sugars and a weak sugar solution-about 5 per cent-is drained from the vat. The acid is neutralized with lime.

This solution then is distilled into molasses, about 50 or 60 per cent sugar.

Only one step more remains. The forestry service chemists must determine the exact nutritive value of the wood molasses as compared with ordinary blackstrap.

That, you may remember, was the climax of the play RUR-"Rossums Universal Robots"-written by Karel

I was reminded of it because of one of the first deeds of Jan Masaryk in 1946 when he returned to his native country after the exile imposed on him when Hitler's robots crushed the first Czech republic. When Masaryk returned, he laid flowers on the grave of Karel Kapek, the great Czech author who wrote that prophetic play, giving us the word "robot" and the warning behind it. The words comes down from the old Slavic "robota," servitude.

on a stage, wide as civilization. Day after day come the frightened echoes from Europe of the fear of war. And yet no people wants it. If you were to write down all the material demands of the diplomats and the rulers of each nation, and put them in the hands of the peoples of the world and tell them: If you want these you must have war, who would pay the price of war? None. None but a robot, without sensitivity, without soul. The martyrdom of Jan Masaryk seems to have hurt rather than helped the Communist cause. I spent some time with the former Czechoslovak ambassador to the United States, Juric Slavik, on the evening of the day when Masaryk's suiside was announced.

Slavik believes that Masaryk felt he could serve his country better dead than as a living prisoner, for the ambassado: says he was a prisoner. Masaryk, alive, but with every word and gesture filtered through the censorship of the Communist screen, would become a symbol of the spirit of Czechoslovakia surrendered, enchained, a noble and historic name and all it has stood for, besmirched and obliterated. Dead, the name, the spirit, live.

In teaching children about the peoples of the world, Allport says the tendency is to accentuate the DIFFERENCES.

He says: "The American child learns with horror about headhunters, about infanticide; and he learns to laugh at the Dutch who clop in wooden shoes, and at the quaint observances of Easter among adherents to the Orthodox faith. The implication of inferiority is a usual by-product of our present method of teaching cultural and national differences. Less dramatic, but far sounder, would be the teaching of the common considerations of justice and morality that are identical over vast areas of the earth. Practices that may SEEM to differ dramatically often indicate common aspirations and common values. The prayer wheels of Tibet and the silent Quaker meeting have virtually identical functional significance; so too the initiation rites of the Pawnee and the American high school com-

Little effort has been made, Allport claims, to search for the common ground of mankind-and he suggests that the United Nations prepare an encyclopedia of the uniformities and similarities in the peliefs, practices and aspirations of all peoples-an encyclopedia which would serve as a reference guide for innumerable aspects of world policy for years to come. Allport thinks that a study of the common peoples of the world undoubtedly would reveal that more important to them than boundaries and national aspirations are matters of self-respect, pride, food, shelter, marriage and the welfare of their children.

Yes, as I said earlier, ask the peoples of the world to vote between capture of territory, acquisition of ports or oil fields at the price of war-and there would be no question of their choice.

ended and the benediction came straight from the heart of the broad-shouldered figure in the pulpit. The stirring voice of the big organ filled the church and the congregation began to leave.

Harry Thatcher and I were surrounded by sober, thoughtful people as we went to the car. He drove out toward the lake.

"Don," Thatcher said abruptly after he got a cigar started. We were entering the lake drive. "There are three million, five hundred and sixty-thousand, four hundred and eighty letters in the Bible."

"I suppose so." I almost dropped my cigarette. His talking about the Book took me by surprise. His interest was financial news, exclusive-

"There are seven hundred and seventy-three thousand, seven hundred and forty-six words in its thirty-one thousand, one hundred and seventy-three verses."

"Sure." I looked at him, wondering.

His gray eyes were half closed, his broad face grave. One could see why he was called "Bull-dog" Thatcher. He had a reputation of going after business, wherever it was, and getting it.

"Shortly after the war ended, a young man named Phillip Crasor came into my club one evening." Thatcher settled himself more comfortably in the broad front seat of the car, one big hand on the wheel rim. "He had been a pilot. I don't know how many missions, but enough. Star end at the university before that. All around athlete. He had been mentioned as a possible Olympic chance. Folks had a little money."

The car rolled with almost no noise. I said nothing. This wasn't the Harry Thatcher I'd known. I'd dropped in on him last night since I was in town for a few days, and he'd insisted upon my going to church with him this morning. Thatcher was not a church man, so far as I knew. I waited.

"Phillip had got some cockeyed ideas in the army," Thatcher went on. "Some radical talk. He started griping about youngsters in the army getting killed while the big-income businessmen stayed home safe. My income runs up a little." He couldn't conceal a note of pride, "He looked at me when he said it and I thought he was making it personal. I told him big-income men were worth what they got and he said they were a lot of stuffed fools. I got sore. I told him he couldn't handle a $50,000 job for a month, much less a year."

Thatcher coughed a little, apol-"I was a captain in the first world war. Infantry. Shrapnel." His hand moved to his right side. "They wouldn't take me the last time." He straightened. Breeze from the lake swept our smoke from the car. "Phillip Crasor said he had $5,000 that said he could handle any $50,-000 job for 12 months. Inherited the money from an aunt, I believe. Anyway, he said for me to put up or shut up. The fellows in the club laughed, and I-well, I lost my temper. I called him at ten to one, betting 50,000 against his five that he couldn't handle the job. I was to name the job. It wasn't to be impossible, or require technical skill neither of us had. It was foolish, but neither of us would back down. It was a bet and I couldn't call it off. Betting is strictly business with me. If I win I collect, and if I men betting each other we'd both back out, or go on with it. I went over to the big bookcase at the other end of the room to think it out. "I saw the Bible in the bookcase and remembered my mother telling me that the Book was good to read when you didn't know what to do. I didn't know what to do.

"I took the Bible and saw in the back where it had so many letters and words and all that, and it gave me an idea. When I was in school I couldn't spell.

place and the materials to do the job, and I was to be the judge of whether the copies produced were acceptable or not. If we had too much argument we could each choose a friend and they would choose a third party to settle the argument. There wasn't anything left for me to do but go through with it. I was going to each Phillip Crasor a lesson, anyway." My forgotten cigarette burned my fingers and I tossed it from the ink and blotters and told him to go struction case at Champaign, Ill. to work. I left a man there to see was strictly business with me. I. had $50,000 at stake."

"Phillip Crasor was going to produce 10 perfectly legible handwritten copies of the Bible, as the contract provided, or he would lose the bet."

"I didn't get back for a week or two, and Phillip had spoiled a lot of paper but produced nothing acceptable. He wanted to fight, but write missed words on the black- I told him to read the contract and

That meant about 15,000 words in a full day of writing. At that rate, it would take 50 days to complete a handwritten copy of the Bible. Ten good, clear, handwritten copies would therefore take about 500 days, and the bet was for a year." Thatcher laughed softly, remem-

"I realized that this was an ideal job for the purpose. It required no technical skill neither of us had, and there was a good chance that Phillip Crasor couldn't do it. I didn't want to lose $50,000 any more than he wanted to lose the five. Phillip hadn't stuck at anything since he came out of the army, and I figured he'd drop out within a few weeks at the most. Then, I'd return his money and teach him a lesson he wouldn't forget about betting. And there was a very good chance that, after he learned what the job was to be, he'd drop the whole thing and agree to call the bet off. That would have been fine with me. I couldn't back down as long as Phillip wanted to go on, of course. The men at the club never would have forgotten it, and it would have hurt me in a business way. I went back to the others."

He nursed his cigar for a few moments.

"Phillip Crasor exploded when he learned what the job was to be. I didn't know it, but his handwriting was awful. He thought I was ribbing him. The men in the club were having the time of their lives. A well-known lawyer drew up a contract and both of us signed it. Phillip Crasor wouldn't back down lose I pay off. shut up. I thought he would burst. The club was betting he'd last about another week. I did not think he'd go that long."

Thatcher looked out over the lake, then his eyes came back to the drive before us.

"Business suddenly took me to France and Italy and I stayed there for months." He coughed again, apologetically. "All wars are not won on the battlefield, and all soldiers do not wear uniforms, you know. Anyway, I was gone over nine months. My man cabled me that Phillip Crasor had locked himself in the cottage and wouldn't let anyone in. The year was almost up when I got back home. It had about 20 days to run. I hurried down to the cottage."

Thatcher flicked ashes from the cigar. "My man said Phillip Crasor had been gone for a week. The 10 handwritten copies of the Bible were on a table in the cottage, all perfectly legible. On top of one pile was a letter to me from Phillip Crasor. I have that letter home now, in my Bible. He said he wouldn't take the $50,000 and the bet was off. I paid, though, to the church we attended this morning. When a man loses, he should pay. It's strictly business. If I'd won-"But what about Phillip Crasor?" I held another forgotten cigarette in my hand.

"Oh. He preached that sermon you heard this morning."

LET'S TALK ABOUT You

GIVE YOURSELF TO A CHAIR

A friend of the late William James, greatest psychologist of his day, asked the noted man if he would mind giving a few rules for the improvement of personality.

"One rule I will give you," responded Dr. James, "a simple rule -but so important. The rule is this: Learn to give yourself up to a chair at least once each day."

Mystified, the inquirer asked what Dr. James meant when he said "give yourself up to a chair."

"Practice conscious relaxation," he was told. "Relax every day. Relaxation, particularly the ease and restfulness associated with utter relaxation, is one of the best aids I know in developing a charming personality."

How often one sees these futile run-arounds, men and women who are busy from morning till night, who never relax, who dash from one thing to another, who fidget and fume, who talk rapidly, who burn up energy and tire themselves and everyone else out by their fruitless display of waste motion. And how rarely one finds the composed, relaxed personality of power.

Dr. James' advice was, of course, purely physical-all you had to do relax utterly, let your body sag where it would. But there is always a subtle and marked relationship between mind and body. And tone from your physical department. 'What mental mood can you expect if you are always physically tense?" he inquired.

Religion in Schools

NOT in a generation has there been a more controversial ruling "I turned over a small cottage handed down by the supreme court down on the lake to Phillip Crasor, than the 8 to 1 decision overruling stocked it with a Bible, paper, pens, the lower courts in the religious in-

Coming at a time when the nation that he didn't get outside help. It is engaged in an all-out battle against the forces of atheistic communism and even war looms as a consequence, the court itself and newspapers throughout the country have been swamped with letters for and against the decision.

The court's ruling was based on use of tax-supported school property for religious instruction in various faiths provided by the Champaign council on religious education one period a week. An atheist brought suit because her son was "embarrassed." The court said she was right and the practice violated the first amendment to the Constitution which reads:

"Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof." No federal law was in question, merely the action of a school board which is under jurisdiction of the state, as are all public schools.

Justice Reed in his dissenting opinion held there was no more violation of the traditional separation of church and state than the practice of using chaplains in the army and navy or for congress itself.

So concerned was the neutral National Education association that it cision "in no way voids the responsibility of the public schools to inculcate those moral and ethical principles which are the essence of the good life. One of the important objectives of public education has been, and always will be, to inspire in youth a deep appreciation for the basic spiritual and religious values which give meaning to existence, provide the foundations of good character and are guides to a high order of human conduct."

About the only semblance to rent control remaining in the so-called rent control bill as it came from the house banking and currency committee is the name. As the measure passed the senate it was weak but the house committee merely enrents to local boards. So it is now a eral authority since the right of review is taken away from the housboards, a farce, pure and simple.

As was predicted in this column months ago, that section of the Taft-Hartley law which prohibited political activity by labor unions and expressions of political opinions by labor newspapers has been declared unconstitutional. The case which had president Phil Murray of the CIO under indictment will go to the supreme court. Other sections also likely will be ruled out by the courts.

Back to the Kitchen

The supercharged issue of whether or not federal taxes on oleomargarine should be repealed was supposed to develop into one of the most historic fights since the battle of Agincourt, but instead it dropped dead before it even got up to the line of scrimmage. The house agriculture committee administered the coup de grace by voting 16 to 10 to shelve all legislation to repeal federal taxes on oleo,

Said Rep. Clifford Hope (Rep., Kas.): "This kills legislation to repeal these taxes at this session of congress."

Some diehards, however, want to get a bill to the house floor by a discharge petition, but that would require 218 signatures and it is doubtful that they could be obtained. Meantime, housewives all over the nation continued to develop lame arms by mixing the color into the margarine themselves.

For no apparent reason except that he doesn't like to live in Washington and is not content with the way his party is running things in his home state, freshman Sen. William E. Jenner of Indiana whose term runs to 1953 plans to run for governor at the coming Republican state convention at Indianapolis. And he does so despite a resolution adopted by the Indiana Republican Editorial association reminding him that he was elected to the U.S. senate and urging him to stay in Washington and tend to his knittin'.

'MINE is a nerve problem, I think," writes Carol Mack. "We are getting horribly nervous, all around, as a family, and I don't know how to handle it any longer.

His first wife is seven years older than he, sick and complaining, and her sole devotion seems to be to the niece who is her nurse and to whom she says she is going to leave all her money.

"Ben had no home life, no chance for hospitality or domestic peace, he was becoming bitter and pessi mistic when I met him. Jerry Misbehaves

"But Jerry behaves so terribly, kicking, screaming, rude, and disobedient, that Ben gets cross and despondent and talks sometimes as if the whole thing had been a mistake. Ben feels that he must thrash Jerry, and then Jerry shouts that he hates his father; Mother asks him not to punish the boy and that makes Ben mad. I am nursing baby Ben, and not back to full strength yet, and this racket and fighting make me cry. Ben says he won't sent Jerry to school, indeed we could hardly afford it, and Leila, the former wife, will give no help unless we give up Jerry completely, and that Ben will never do.

'Are there any secrets as to dealing with a bad little eight-yearold?" the letter ends. "Believe me, I pray about it and will make any sacrifice for it. Ben's salary is small; we pay no rent, we have no servant, and yet we could not possibly spare the $1,200 or $1,500 a year that a good school would cost. Please help me!"

To Carol I would say that an actual sacrifice may be demanded of her but somehow, judging from her unusual letter, I believe that she may be strong enough to make it. Deplorable as these office - wife into it now, and she may be able to it as baby jealousy and unsettledpull a success out of it.

BUILD LOVE

Carol, a young secretary, married her boss whose life was constantly beset with the complaints and disgruntled vicissitudes of a sickly, invalid wife.

She informs Miss Norris that her marriage has been an exceptionally happy one with one exception. Jerry, her eight-year-old stepson, is unmanageable especially when he returns from visits with his mother. After being with his mother he exudes vituperation and tells Carol that he hates her intensely.

Carol is certain that the boy is under the evil spell of his mother who injects venomous potions of hate into the boy at every opportunity since she strenuously resents Carol's position as her successor.

Her best chance of building harmony in the home, according to Miss Norris, is to construct a bridge of love between father and son. Carol should promote mutual interests between Jerry and Ben and assist in every way to strengthen the bond of friendship between them.

The pure gold chain which she patiently forges link by link will radiate rays of love of such brilliance that she cannot possibly escape receiving some of them her-

Should Share Refreshments

Tell Jerry that Dad must have some small refreshment when he comes in tired, and that Ben must share it. Have him wait for his after school cookies and milk, and give Dad his stronger refreshment at the same time, putting dinner off until the peaceful hour of seventhirty, when both boys are in bed. Praise Jerry to his father, and Dad to Jerry, and quote between them every loving thing you honestly can plant in this plot of affection.

On Sunday ask Ben to walk with Jerry to the museum or the docks while you and Mother clean house. Make Jerry think this new relationship is his own doing, and Ben think it is his own. And gradually explain to the small boy that if he has Dad sometimes, you must too.

This will take time and patience. It will involve discouragement and setbacks. It asks love first, and silence second. Overlook all you can, and when you talk with Ben versus home-wife affairs are, she is overlook more. Laugh off a lot of ness. Probably Jerry's own mother is filling him with prejudices, you can't stop that. Entered at the Post Office at Hamlin, Texas,

Trends among Congressmen this week indicate the nation will doubtless get a hefty increase in appropriations for aircraft production. . . . Since the services are asking for at least two billions of dollars, it seems relatively certain that at least one billion will be made available to modernize our aircraft and bring our striking forces up to par. . . . It should be recalled that our national defense budget calls for an cutlay of eleven Lillions, and the cost of training an enlarged Navy, Army and Air Force personnel will have to be taken into account before the final cost on our defense program is arrived at accurately.

Now that lawmakers favor more an' better aireraft, we should keep well in mind the fact we have hundreds of nov obsolete, war-weary craft overseas that should be permanently grounded. . . There is very little sense in taking up C-47s that have already turned in yoeman duties during World War II and ris kthe necks of our boys in service; when this nation could provide brand new, first line ships for all overseas operations. . . Following the end of World War II shooting we began to dismantle many of our air fields and, to add insult to injury, began to stack thousands of planes in air field "graves" much like school children tired and bored with too many toys. . . . We did not apparently have the foresight to keep aircraft production, especially with newer, fast planes, up to a point of comparable safety; much less keep our air forces anywhere near the peak of efficiency maintained behind the Iron Curtain.

Something in the way of a new inflationary trend is in the mill with mobilization planning being discussed in rather frank and open terms. . . . Addition of about 600,000 men to the armed forces will not seriously reduce the nation's labor force, and the equipment needed to train these men will not seriously drain our productive capacities during this vital year of reconstruction. . . . Aluminum, which will be ance. greatly needed in manufacture of new planes, is in plentiful supply at present, and indications point to an eventual salvage of several thousand tons from shipss now being wrecked at first one sector and another. . . . We have a gigantic housing bill coming Cox added. up that, if approved, should assure the U S. of al 10-year construction boom,

Cotton's Position Strengthened by Recent Declines

Strong supply and demand situation for cotton improved after the recent sharp decline in cotton prices. the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reported this week in a release to The Herald.

According to Dr. A. B. Cox, professor of cotton marketing at the University of Texas, "the export price of United States cotton is for the first time in a long time relatively lower than major foreign growths. Moreover, the decline at this time in the price of cotton will be a restraint on acreage expansion which will further strengthen the position of coton."

The decline in cotton prices followed the pattern of all agricultural products, reflecting some of the effects of inflation. "Cotton prices went down because of a general decline in price of agricultural products and not because cotton itsel' was in a weak position," Dr. Cox

Curtailment of increases of cotton acreages are anticipated, although the real post-war adjustment is yet to come. Inflationary tax reductions and the Marshall Plan should speed Europe's recovery and bring national economies nearer to bal-

Dateway guarantees to sell every food at the bottom price in this neighborhood"

This is SAFEWAY'S guarantee!

We guarantee you the bottom price in your shopping districtgrade for grade and quality for quality—on every food store item

We mean this on every item ... every day

To avoid wasting time, energy and gasoline in shopping around, our promise of the bottom price goes for every food store item-not just one or two "specials" for each and every day you shop-not just for "special" days It is Safeway's policy to always sell food at the lowest price. And to be sure of that, it is also Safeway's policy to meet any and every low food price in your neighborhood.

Here's how you can help us keep food prices low:

OUR METHOD of food distribution regularly assures lowest food prices at Safeway. But some day we may miss some "special." We want to give you the lowest prices on "specials" too.

Will you do this? If you see any product on our shelves that you believe can be bought elsewhere for less, tell one of our staff. We will immediately investigate. If the competitive price is for comparable quality, we will promptly meet the lower price.

Remember, food prices must be low at Safeway. We bring foods in by direct routes, handle them efficiently, cut unnecessary costs. You help keep food distribution costs low by waiting on yourself, paying cash and carrying your purchases home.

By trading at Safeway you earn and are entitled to the lowest food

PRESIDENTIAL TIMBER

The race to be Mister Harassmen or the Worrying Man, otherwise known as President of the United States, is on. Everybody is coming into the ring at the drop of a nat, so to speak. The stewards may have to divide it into two heats to prevent overcrowding and piling up in the stretch.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur is willing to go to the post. He is quite a man. George Washington threw a dollar across the Rappahannock but MacArthur threw a brass hat across the Pacific ocean.

General MacArthur offers himself to the Republicans if they insist and it sounds a little like a reiteration of his famous statement. "I shall return." Anybody who can wind up ruling Japan after Corregidor is not to be discounted no matter how long or difficult the road.

President Truman made the announcement that he would like four years more of trials and tribulations the same day MacArthur's word came from Tokyo. In the last couple of years Harry has been through more fighting than Douglas.

Messrs. Dewey, Taft, Stassen, Vandenburg and other GOP hopefuls took the entry of General MacArthur with a show of minimum concern but no race is ever made any easier by traffic congestion at the post.

General Ike, the Abilene Bearcat, announced that he would not be a candidate and added that he did not see anything in the situation which required a military man to make a general headquarters of the White House. Plainly MacArthur's reply to this is, "Sez you!"

Democratic politicians are insisting that if they could get Truman to step out and get Ike to ride the donkey it wouldn't make any difference if the Republicans ran MacArthur, Doolittle, Bradley, Spatz, Nimitz and Halsey all on one ticket.

Could it come to pass that, with General MacArthur seeing an excuse for a military man camping on the Potomac, General Eisenhower might be prevailed upon to change his mind? We shall see what we shall see, as the fellow said as he looked into the wrong end of a telescope. But we hope the campaign will be recognizable as a political contest and not a major military event.

Elmer Twitchell is close to a fortune. He is thinking of signing up to supply the United Nations with loopholes. The demand for smaller ones is especially high.

Dear Uncle Sam: This is a follow up to my recent letter asking if you didn't think it time you snapped out of that selfdestructive trance in the drug-store window and started acting as if you were hep to the fact that Kremlin workers for your liquidation are just about the most efficient, wideawake, high-powered 24-hours-a-day shift organization in the land.

Sure, the people are asleep at the switch. Sure, they are hard to arouse. Yeah, I know 85 per cent of all Americans are so busy playing pinball machines, writing limericks for radio prizes, applauding the wrong people in newsreels and trying to get a new sedan that the 15 per cent hard at work to Sovietize America are having it easy.

What we need are demonstrations in every town and city for the preservation of America, and in 'em there should be the spirit of the oldtime Fourth of July meetings, with the brass bands playing "Yankee Doodle" and the eyes of the people lighted up with gratitude for the great blessing of living in the greatest country on earth.

Americans are good joiners and good organizers. Once aroused they are tough babies and nobody's fools. How about a national campaign to get them as hard-working, alert and vigorous in preserving the country as the Moscow agents are for feeding it to the crows? I'm just ask-

Nathan Adams of Dallas, chairman of the committee, praised the citizens of the state on their continued support of the U.S. treasury's program to help combat inflation and to aid its management of the public debt.

"There is a growing realization among the people of Texas and the nation," Mr. Adams said, "that the great national debt must be spread among the greatest number of citizens if we are to continue a sound economy. Each individual citizen is directly affected by the management of the national debt and it is gratifying to see so many Texans continuing to invest in U. S. savings bonds.

"The U. S. treasury has received the endersement from groups all over the nation urging it to continue a vigorous campaign to sell more savings bonds in 1948 as one of the great anti-inflationary moves. These groups include businessmen, bankers, investment bankers and many others."

Total sales for Texas in 1947 mounted to $202,896,123, Adams said, with $134,650,000 in Series E s. He pointed out that almost or cent of the number of Series E bonds issued were in $25 denominations.

West Texas Veterans Administration regional office, which is serving veterans of the Snyder area, is now located in its new modern office building at 1600-24 19th Street in downtown Lubbock, Robert W. Sisson announced this week in a release to The Times.

The regional office, serving 79 West Texas counties, has been located at the Lubbock Army Air Field. 12 miles west of the city, since it was activated June 1, 1946.

The office began full operation in its new quarters March 1. Office hours will be from 8:00 a. m. to 5:00 p. m., Monday through Friday, it was stated.

"Opening of the new VA building will afford veterans of West Texas a more convenient and accessible service. It will provide them with the most modern medical and dental facilities for out-patient treatment and examination. "Carelessness and ignorance represent two of the most powerful factors in spreading communicable disease from man to man," Hamlin area people were reminded this week

"No more emphatic example of this fact exists than the continued ravages of tuberculosis. In spite of the knowledge of its causes and spread, and of curative methods, tuberculosis is still a very serious problem not only in Texas, but throughout the United States," declares Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer.

"It is true that tuberculosis no longer is first on the list of killing diseases as it was formerly," Dr. Cox said, "but despite having been reduced to fifth place in Texas, it still is responsible for more deaths between the ages of 15 and 45 than any other disease. And this fact exists even though the majority of tuberculosis patients could have their of giving it in cash the House ordercondition arrested if it were recognized early and proper treatment partment's share of customs taxes applied.

"Treatment of the early recog-An amendment by Representative nized case is essential. A more intelligent appreciation of this fact would result in the saving of thousands of lives.

"When a diagnosis of active tuberculosis has been made, examination of all of the other members of the immediate family should follow as a matter of course. Tuberculosis runs in families, not because of any especial susceptibility to the disease, but becaue it is communicable, being usually transmitted through close and prolonged contact with the active case."

To reduce the number of deaths caused by tuberculosis, Dr. Cox suggests periodic examination of all adults, a check-up by physicians of the known active cases and contacts, regular examinations of high school children, isolation or hospitalization of the active tuberculosis case, and a more intelligent application of hygienic living principles.

WHEN THEY LET YOU in back of the scene you often can pick up a lot of information you can't get out front.

I discovered that in talking things over with Cat Brecheen, a Cardinal pitcher who is just about as good as they come or go.

"I would like," I said to the Feline Phenom, "to have you explain one thing.

"Shoot," said Brecheen.

"Just a year ago around this time, the Cardinals were 3-to-5 favorites. They were the surest things in baseball. They also were kicking such teams as the Yankees, Tigers, Red Sox and others around as if the opposition had just emerged from the bush. How could this happen when later the Cardinals looked like an orphan asylum with cramp colic the first two months of the season? I don't mean looked bad, I mean looked terrible.'

Harry the Cat fixed two shining eyes on me and started to talk. "That's very simple," he said.

"The Cardinal veterans were not belting the other teams around. It was the Cardinal rookies-the kids. We had infielders and outfielders who were knocking down the fences-all rookies. We had fine pitching-mostly rookies.

"Naturally the veterans sat back and laughed. What a push-over. Sam Breadon said it was the greatest bunch of rookies ever known. We thought so too.

Gene Sarazen Arrives

Like a robin blown from a snowdrift or a bluebird wafted from an ice floe, a short, stocky fellow with a quick smile and piano legs came into the room. His name happens ion sired, 2 months old pupples; to be Gene Sarazen, one of the males, 1 buff female. These are more than the $50 we ask 2625 Ryan Ave., Fort Worth, Texas, 93-1313. of the most popular golfers of all

Gene had an idea that the younger and unknown pros should get more protection or help.

"You don't have to help the Hogans, Sneads, Demarets, Nelsons or Lockes," he said. "They can take care of themselves. But these younger fellows on a tour have to pay out rather important moneyfrom $2,000 to $3,000. There should be bigger cash prizes, extended to those who finish from 12th to 20th For place. "Young ballplayers and young football players get paid something -I mean the pros. Can you imagine these fellows being asked to fork over $2,000 each to get experience?

"Golf doesn't care for its own. Most of the money goes to just a few people. We should have people ahead of a tour making arrangements for the younger fellows at much cheaper prices-not $20 a day. Give them a break."

If golf, pro golf, ever got a real commissioner, my vote would go to Sarazen. Maybe he wouldn't want it or wouldn't take it. Gene is for the older golfer, the kid golfer

SCRIPTURE: Ezekiel 18; 34; 36:22-DEVOTIONAL READING: Ezekiel 34

His Message to Exiles

Lesson for April 11, 1948

CONTINUING the theme of last Sunday's lesson, we go further into the ministry of Ezekiel as God's messenger to a people in exile. For this Sunday we have chapters 18 and 34, and portions of the 36th and 37th chapters. The 18th chapter opens with a revealing rebuke to Ezekiel. God tells him expressly that he is not to say any more to the Jews that "the fathers Dr. Newton have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge. As I live, saith the Lord God, ye shall not have occasion any more to use this proverb in Isreal. Behold, all souls are mine." And then God adds, "The soul that sinneth, it shall

GOD'S LOVE AND CARE

A LL through these chapters in Sunday's lesson, two solemn truths appear-God's love for his people, manifest in unwearied care; and the responsibility of each soul for the sin which such commits against God.

This truth, or these truths, I should say, are equally applicable for us today. As Ezekiel was sent to remind the people of God's love and care, so must we, early in eur youth, accept the responsibility of accepting his love or rejecting his love.

We cannot claim his care if we despise his will. That is the message of Ezekiel for us.

WHAT GOD IS LIKE

NOWHERE in the Old Testament is the love of God more manifest and compelling than in Ezekiel 34:11-27. I hope that you will open your Bible to this passage. Here the Bible speaks in words that burn with the compassionate love of God for sinful souls.

"I will both search my sheep, and seek them out. As a shepherd seeketh out his flock in the day that he is among his sheep that are scattered; so will I seek out my sheep, and I will deliver them out of all places where they have been scattered in the cloudy and dark day . . . And I will bring them to their own land, and feed them upon the mountains of Israel

by the rivers." One is reminded here of Jesus, when he said, "For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost."

A NEW HEART "A new heart also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you," Ezekiel 36:26. Here we have, perhaps, the sublimest sentence in the prophecy of Ezekiel. God is speaking. Ezekiel is merely the messenger - the voice. as John the Baptist delighted to describe himself.

Ezekiel has faithfully declared that each individual is responsible unto God, and just as faithfully he has proclaimed God's love and care, and now he adds the third great truth, namely, that God waits to bestow the new heart and the new spirit to every repentant soul.

A new heart and a new spirit. That is what the Jews needed. That is what the world needs today-a new heart and a new spirit. Only God could give a new heart then, and only God can make such gift

EZEKIEL'S MESSAGE FOR US

WOULD we listen to Ezekiel to-day? He has the message we need above all other words that may be spoken. He called the Jews to repentance of sin. That is what America needs today. Boys and girls need it. Men and women need it. And just as God waited patiently to bestow the new heart and spirit to Israel in the long ago, so does he wait to grant us today a new heart and a new spirit.

"Our God, our help, in ages past, Our Hope for years to come; Our shelter from the stormy blast, And our eternal bome."
